BOWA Builders, Inc. has announced the opening of a new office on East Washington Street in Middleburg, Va.

"Obviously, there's a growing market for custom home and large-scale remodeling in Fauquier and Loudoun Counties," says Joe Burke, BOWA's new division manager for the expanded area. "But we're not interested in being residential developers. We want to help new clients in these markets to improve upon what's already there."

Under Burke's direction, BOWA Builders' expansion west comes in response to numerous requests from current and prospective clients for high-end construction services in Loudoun and Fauquier Counties. The company's research confirms that these counties continue to undergo significant growth and, therefore, a substantial market for the firm's complete range of residential services, including custom home and large-scale addition/renovation construction.

In addition, given the horse enthusiasm associated with Loudoun and Fauquier Counties, BOWA's expertise in equestrian facilities construction provide an appropriate segue into the community. BOWA has completed numerous equestrian projects throughout the area, including barns, indoor arenas and riding rings.

"As we've been doing in our existing markets, this strategic move will enable us to effectively deliver our signature level of customer service and quality craftsmanship to clients in Loudoun and Fauquier Counties," adds Burke.

BOWA Builders, Inc. which is headquartered in McLean, has been serving the immediate Washington metropolitan area for the past 47 years. The company's contract construction volume in these established markets is expected to see steady growth in the coming years. In 2003, the company launched its home projects division, focusing on small to mid-size remodeling projects for new and existing clients.

Partners Josh Baker and Larry Weinberg built decks their first year in business, doing all the labor themselves. Today the firm specializes in high-end residential construction, showcasing distinctive architecture, custom features and the highest-quality craftsmanship. BOWA has 85 employees and has won over 60 awards for excellence, including named one of the "50 Great Places to Work" by Washingtonian magazine.
